OUTLOOKS ON PEST MANAGEMENT

CONTENTS – June 2019

- 102 Editorial: Partnerships for Progress in a Smallholder Cropping System – Charlie Riches
- 104 Crowdsourcing Field Observations from Smallholder Farmers in Tanzania Using Interactive Voice Response – Tim C. B. Chancellor, Jan S. H. Priebe & Prisilla A. Mkenda. An interactive voice response system used with simple mobile phones allows resource-poor farmers to provide real-time information on emerging insect pest problems; and so enables agricultural extension staff to provide a rapid and targeted response
- 111 Regulatory News – new registrations, environmental effects and withdrawals
- 115 The Changes in Cotton Production in Zimbabwe 1924–2018 – G.A. Matthews & J. P. Tunstall. Cotton production data for Zimbabwe, formerly Southern Rhodesia, over nearly ten decades illustrate the extent improved yields were achieved by the introduction of insecticide application as part of an integrated pest management programme introduced to farmers in the 1960s with continued expansion in area of production until becoming adversely affected by the country's agricultural difficulties following Independence
- 120 Australian Herbicide Resistance Initiative (AHR) Celebrates Its 20th Anniversary – Hugh J. Beckie & Stephen B. Powles outline the achievements of the Australian Herbicide Resistance Initiative
- 123 Biotechnology News – developments in molecular biology and genomics
- 128 BioConsortia – A Lesson in Application, Innovation and Sound Science – Len Copping talks to Marcus Meadows-Smith about the company's current position and its targets for increasing the value and understanding of biologicals in crop protection
- 130 Building Africa's Resilient Agricultural Future – UK/Morocco Partnership Announced
- 132 R&D News – reports on new products, new applications and new uses
- 136 Book Review
- 137 Book Review
